

AWAI Announces The Barefoot Writer's Club – Your Guide to the "Perfect Life"

By Paul Hollingshead

One of the constant challenges we have here at AWAI is keeping up with all the writing opportunities available to writers like you and me.

When I started writing copy 15 or so years ago, we'd bang out an ad or a letter – get it printed up ... and then mail it to lists of prospects.

It was pretty simple and there was lots of work for us then ...

But nothing like now.

The Internet, email, social media, video and all the high-speed broadband that makes all this electronic communication and so much web content accessible to everyone has created an explosion of opportunities for writers.

Where once copywriters could count on writing a simple letter, ad or brochure ... now there are several dozen areas in which decent writers can make an excellent living delivering ads and much needed content.

So back to the challenge ...

How do we keep up with it all ... and let you know everything you need to know about all the incredible opportunities?

Here's what we've come up with.

It's a brand new club we've started especially for direct response writers.

It's called The Barefoot Writer's Club, and it's designed to introduce writers and aspiring writers to the plethora of opportunities that exist – as well as offer writing tips, motivation, inspiration and specific ways to launch your writing career and get to where you want to be the fastest possible way.

The first issue of the club's magazine, The Barefoot Writer, is online today. Click here to learn more.

In The Barefoot Writer's Club you'll be introduced to dozens of very well-paying writing opportunities that you can do from home (or anywhere you choose) ... in your bare feet if you'd like ... with no boss breathing down your neck.

Our team of contributors – all working Barefoot Writers – will give you the benefit of their experience. They'll share the strategies and techniques they've picked over the years to strengthen your writing. Show you how to win clients. Be more productive. And they'll share the fun perks that go along with this career.

In the pages of The Barefoot Writer you'll learn how to:

- Help someone land a better job more quickly as a resume writer
- Work with a worthy charity to raise money
- Sell your own words and expertise as a self publisher
- Drive new customers to a business's website as an expert web writer
- Highlight exciting destinations as a travel writer
- Write ads and "story style" letters that sell directly to customers as a copywriter
- And much, much more ...

And when you sign up we'll start you off right with the premier issue, as well as six special "opportunity" reports giving you a
